TITANIUM

The Best Metal Material for Eyewear

Embedded within our company name - CLARITI® - is the elemental symbol -  $Ti$  - of the material which is our specialty: TITANIUM. Of the commonly used metal materials* for eyeglass frames, titanium is the top-tier. Products made entirely from titanium cost more, because it is a very difficult material with which to work; it requires more costly manufacturing equipment, methods, and time. But the comfort and durability benefits are very much worth the nominal extra cost:

- Titanium is twice as strong as stainless steel - as measured by tensile strength and flexion strength.
- Titanium is almost half the weight of stainless steel - best for comfort.
- Titanium has memory - to hold shape (but still easy to adjust.)
- Titanium does not fatigue over time - more durable, it endures.
- Titanium is less brittle - pieces are less likely to break.
- Titanium is non-corrosive - less temple pitting.
- Titanium is hypo-allergenic - best for those sensitive to nickel (some titanium frames may still have nickel in the platings and colorings. Look for the "nickel-allergy-free" label.)

The CLARITI philosophy is to produce superior quality and performing eyewear for the most fair prices. With this in mind, we go to the additional expense and care to make sure that the frames in our K O N I S H i TOTAL TITANIUM and Mademoiselle® TOTAL TITANIUM collections also incorporate benefits not offered by most other such frames on the market. Not all titanium frames on the market can be assumed to perform equally to a CLARITI as to being entirely "NICKEL-ALLERGY-FREE," and "LOW-MAINTENANCE."

K O N I S H i & Mademoiselle® TOTAL TITANIUM frames are certified to have:

- All major metal frame components (temples, eyewires, bridges, nose-pad arms, end pieces, and hinge parts) are a Titanium material (Either Pure or  $\beta$ ).
Benefit: No manufacturing short-cuts are taken; all advantages of titanium are obtained.
- The highest grade of Pure Titanium with a purity level of 99%.
Benefit: Maximum strength and durability.
- No nickel in the base metal, gold-plating, or colorings
Benefit: Unlikely to pit inside the temples or turn nose pads green
- All frame component pieces are high-temperature welded, not low-temperature soldered
Benefit: Frame is less likely to break
- Shape-holding and resilient titanium throughout the frame
Benefit: Fewer adjustment problems
- Anti-loosening hinge screws are a specified production standard
Benefit: Fewer problems with floppy temples and lost hinge screws

* Here are the most common metal materials used in eyeglass frames:

- Regular metal (Monel): A 67-33 nickel-copper alloy
- Stainless steel: An iron, nickel, chromium, and manganese alloy
- Memory titanium: A 50-50 nickel-titanium alloy
(Frames made with this material are hybrids: Only bridges and maybe also the temples have this titanium; other pieces are another metal)
- $\beta$ -titanium (Beta): Generally, a 75-25 titanium-vanadium alloy (no nickel)
- Pure titanium: 90% or more titanium (no nickel)
